A developer has proposed a high density, 60-foot-tall, mixed use residential building, know as 29 South Depot Plaza, stretching the length of a football field to be constructed on the site of an existing warehouse just to the south of the Tarrytown train station.

An architectural rendering supplied by the developer superimposed at the exact scale as photo above. The proposed building is 300 feet wide and 60 feet tall. It will block the view from Losee Park of Franklin Hill and the upper village. It will also block the view of the Mario Cuomo Bridge for most of the residents of Franklin Courts, and many of the residents of Franklin Towers.
